

Atheistic Evolution Tree & Fruit Study

A study to push 4 logical consistent atheistic evolutionary world view. If folk want to hold this view let them understand its full implications or reject it!

the fit killing the unfit is good

- what does it say about the past, how the world began?
- what was the world like at the beginning?
- how many years ago was that?
- how did we get to where we are now?
natural selection>survival of the fittest - how does that work in practice, give me some eg.s
- is where we are now generally an improvement on the beginning?
- so natural selection etc must be good?
if God created the world using evolution, does it say anything about him as a character?
- so to abort a child less fit to survive is a good thing?
tell em about Stephen Hawkins, about man at hospital with premature baby that was young enough to abort, baby screams in hospital & in abortion, show them baby's head... - but it's all a good thing, eh?

Bright future thru death

- are things likely to get worse or better then as things go on?
  - why? and how/or through what process? [survival of the fittest]
  - so we can be full of hope?
  - what do you reckon? does this fit with your experience?
  - in your school give me an example of natural selection?
taking lunch money, weaker get weaker, rich get richer
  - the atom bomb a good thing worldwide destruction, speed the process?
"Yeah, right!" - God willing they will say this?
  - ought to be glad when someone dies? Why?
It's all part of the process to the next stage, the higher stage...
- Bible answer: the earth is groaning and in pain, it ain't meant to be like this, and it will all be changed one day... soon

Racism

During 1859, Charles Darwin, in his book "Origin of the Species," popularized the idea of "social evolution." He said that the European was the "fittest to survive" and that Aborigines, for example, were doomed to die out, similar to the dodo and the dinosaurs. In fact, although almost never taught, the subtitle of his books reads "The Preservation of Favored Races in the Struggle" for life. The beloved father of evolution was a racist.

- what did humans evolve from?
- are some humans likely to be 'less-evolved' than others? Which?
- if we can kill apes and cows, what stops us killing other 'less-evolved' people who are more like animals, or should nothing stop us?
tell them about aborigines & museums in West tinking they were missing links and paying for their skeletons - what do they think?
- would you give an ape a seperate toilet to a man?
- so shouldn't you give less-evolved people different toilets like in America? Or if whites were less evolved or pigymies??
Bible answer only works: one blood, one race, one kind, one father Adam, Noah - all brothers, no higher, all sinners... - stop racism
- if the method of getting from one stage to the next higher stage is thru bloodshed/ the natural death of the weaker party would this mean a change of view in practice?
- if one tribe completely destroys another (Hutus and the Tutsies in Rwanda) should we be upset or glad in any way about it?
- if Africa starves should we be upset or in anyway glad?

You won't get consistent logical evolutionists stating their opinions too publicly, but check this:
